

Photography Policy

- Attendees will be able to get a lanyard to wear to indicate that they do not wish to be photographed. You may not take photographs of people wearing lanyards without their permission.
 - If you cannot tell whether a person is wearing a lanyard, assume they are and act accordingly.
 - Attendees under the age of 18 whose parents or guardians have not indicated their consent for photographs of their children to be taken will be required to wear a lanyard.
- Photographs may be reused by CompSoc, Major League Hacking or BlackRock for promotion of future events. If you don't want photographs of you to be used in this way, you may opt out by contacting the organisers either before or during the event.
- We intend to publish the names and photographs of the winners of our event. If you wish to opt out, you may do so by contacting the organisers either before or during the event.
- Photographs may be published online and viewed by anybody across the world.
- Pictures must not be taken of attendees who are unsuitably dressed, or asleep or otherwise incapacitated.
- Inappropriate or intrusive photography will be reported to our Safeguarding Officer and any offender will be isolated, a full report of the incident will be written down, and any responsible parents or guardians will be informed. Depending on the situation a relevant authority will be contacted.
- Photographs may not be taken containing the BlackRock logo.
- Any attendee may take photographs in accordance with this policy.
